The Joint Debate.

The Republicans and Prohibitionists rallied their forces in large numbers at Dodd's Hall on Wednesday night, the occasion being the joint debate between Oscar Hale, President of the Young Men's Republican Club of Bloomfield, and Edwin A. Smith of the Monteleir Prohibition Club. The two gentlemen being wellknown, many people felt a desire to hear them and the Hall was filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. F. T. Camp was chosen to preside. The question presented was: Resolved, that no ground exists for the candidacy of Fisk and Brooks.

Both gentlemen fired their heavy artillery at each other, while the audience looked on with interest and took it all in good part on the whole, liberally bestowing their applause on both speakers.
